The Kasbah du Toubkal is an extraordinary venture, the product of an imaginative Berber and European partnership. Sharing a belief that the beauty of the Toubkal National Park should be accessible to all who respect it, the Kasbah has been transformed using traditional methods, from the home of a Feudal Caid into an unprecedented haven.

Situated above the village of Imlil and in view of the highest mountain in North Africa the setting is exceptional -Martin Scorsese used it as a set for his film on the Dalai Lama.

".....With the best rooftop views in North Africa... this is the country's first and foremost mountain retreat"
